BART-DC station: No final decisions

BY TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

Daly City reacted to BART at their highly touted joint meeting Monday afternoon in the same way Charlie Brown eyes Lucy every time she offers to hold a football for him.

The explanation that Bay Area Rapid Transit District officials gave the 130 citizens gathered at the Pacelli Community Center was simple.

They said BART wants to build a turnaround track and storage facility for trains in Daly City to improve its train turnback time and to save the system $1.5 million.

Daly City officials and residents politely protested that BART has lied to Daly City in the past and that extending the tracks into Daly City is an excuse to inch farther south toward San Francisco International Airport.

One resident noted that BART wouldn't have bothered to seek Daly City's approval were it not for a bill currently before state legislators that would give Daly City veto power over BART's plans.

Another pointed out the incongruity of BART's proposal to spend $30 million or more to ultimately save $1.5 million.

The dialogue took place at a four-hour meeting devoted to airing both sides of BART's plan to dig farther south into San Mateo County.

Representatives from the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, State Senator John Foran's office and Assemblyman Louis J. Papan's office as well as two Daly City City Council members, Anthony Giammona and Albert Teglia, were spotted in the audience.

It was the first attempt to present the pros and cons to the public and to listen to what the public had to say.

And it was the first move toward compromise since BART's Board of Directors began threatening April 10 to cut service to Daly City by two-thirds if BART can't build the turnaround in that city.

The BART general manager, Keith Bernard, admitted that it had goofed in its design of the Daly City station. Within the past year, he said BART had discovered that the station's present 3-1/2 minute turnaround time must be shaved to three minutes.

"The sad fact is that the whole BART system can't perform the way it should because of this bottleneck," he said.

Bernard added that BART ultimately needs a two-minute turnaround time. He said the system has abandoned the original goal of a 90-second turnaround as "unachieveable and unrealistic."

But Bernard insisted that BART isn't the ogre pictured in the media. He said, "BART has always had a policy of responsiveness in dealing with communities," and noted that some BART board members had passed motions during the past week that acknowledge their willingness to cooperate with Daly City.

Robert Mix, capital improvement program manager for BART, explained that BART won't be able to serve commuters adequately by 1983 without the turnaround and storage facility.

DRINKING IT ALL IN

About 130 citizens packed into Pacelli Community Center in Daly City Monday for the first public hearing on BART's war with Daly City over extending its system further south.

He said it would eliminate long lines of passengers waiting to board and would save BART $1.5 million per year that it now spends to send its trains across the bay for storage.

Howard Goode, BART's manager of planning, described the three proposed locations of the facility.

Under BART's original proposal, BART would extend the tracks south along the old Southern Pacific right-of-way, between Niantic Avenue and Interstate 280, and would widen out into five tracks just north of Washington Street.

Daly City countered with its own proposal, in which the tracks would swing over to run parallel along Interstate 280, past Citrus Avenue, duck underneath Junipero Serra Boulevard and the freeway offramp and then curve back along the Southern Pacific right-of-way.

The tracks would continue southeasterly under Washington Street and San Pedro Road, past the old Alec store, widening out into several tracks near a trailer park in unincorporated Colma, just north of F Street and adjacent to El Camino Real.

Goode didn't spend much time describing the third proposal, which envisions building the facility north of the current Daly City station, somewhere between that station and the Balboa Park BART station in San Francisco.

Goode said this proposal is less desirable than the other two, because there isn't much space in the area and it would require a reduction in the number of trains serving the Daly City station.

He explained that service to Daly City probably would be cut by two-thirds under the third scheme, because BART would be forced to bring one instead of the three lines it currently plans to terminate in Daly City.

Noting that 20,000 trips per day now are made at the Daly City station and that number is growing, Goode said BART would like to increase service at that station at the same time it increases service on the other side of the bay.

But, when faced with choosing to give better service to those who pay for BART and those who don't, Goode said BART's "dilemma" is that it must serve those who support the system.

Although 10 percent of BART's total riders are from San Mateo County, he said they pay for a mere 1 percent of the system's operating costs.

When people in the audience protested that people using the Daly City station pay a surcharge on their tickets, Bernard replied that San Mateo County contributes only 6 to 7 percent of BART's fare revenues — and that fare revenues account for only one-third of the system's operating costs.

Goode said the cost of the first proposal would be roughly $30 to $40 million and the second proposal would cost $14 to $15 million more. He said BART doesn't know how much the third proposal would cost but that it would probably cost less.

In answer to questions by Daly City City Manager David Rowe, Goode said BART would seek the same method of financing, with the federal government paying 85 percent of the cost and BART patrons paying the rest.

He said BART hasn't estimated how many more passengers will be using the system in the future but said the total number of trips per day from the Daly City station probably will increase from the present 20,000 to 30,000 by 1990.

Goode assured citizens in the audience that BART will fence in its tracks so that children can't get near the third rail.

Goode and Bernard stressed that BART has no present plans to build a maintenance facility in Daly City or to extend BART to the airport.

In its presentation, Daly City emphasized the number of times that BART has broken promises to the city in the past.

Director of Community Development Don Fleming said the credibility gap went as far back as 1959, when Daly City was counting on rapid transit in a different location.

According to Fleming, one of the biggest blows came in the late 1960s, when BART rejected Daly City's request for an underground station and designed an aerial station.

To counteract the negative effects of that station, Fleming said Daly City expanded John Daly Boulevard, which is adjacent to the station; developed two parking structures, far exceeding the parking spaces BART predicted would be needed; established preferential parking restrictions in neighborhoods near the station; and tried unsuccessfully to get BART to cooperate with the city when Daly City drew up its redevelopment plan and General Plan.

City Attorney Albert Polonsky attributed the friction between Daly City and BART to what he termed "BART's unilateral actions." Referring to the original agreement that BART and Daly City signed in 1970, Polonsky said that contract requires BART to negotiate a new agreement with the city for any future development.

Polonsky also asked Bernard whether BART had sought permission from the California Department of Transportation for building the track extension adjacent to Interstate 280, saying, "or is this just being thrown out so it can be shot down by the state?"

Bernard replied that CalTrans has given BART "conceptual assurance that that is a feasible alternative."

Traffic Engineer Keith Dellaway and General Plan Consultant Robert Ironside elaborated on the negative effects of the BART station. They said it brought traffic congestion, noise and parking problems to an already crowded neighborhood and that BART should have chosen a better spot for the station.

Donald Ciucci, former redevelopment staff planner, said the city tried to accommodate BART in its redevelopment plans but got no cooperation. Finally, he said, the city eliminated any extension of BART from its plans for Old Daly City — and one year later heard about BART's plan to build a Daly City turnaround.

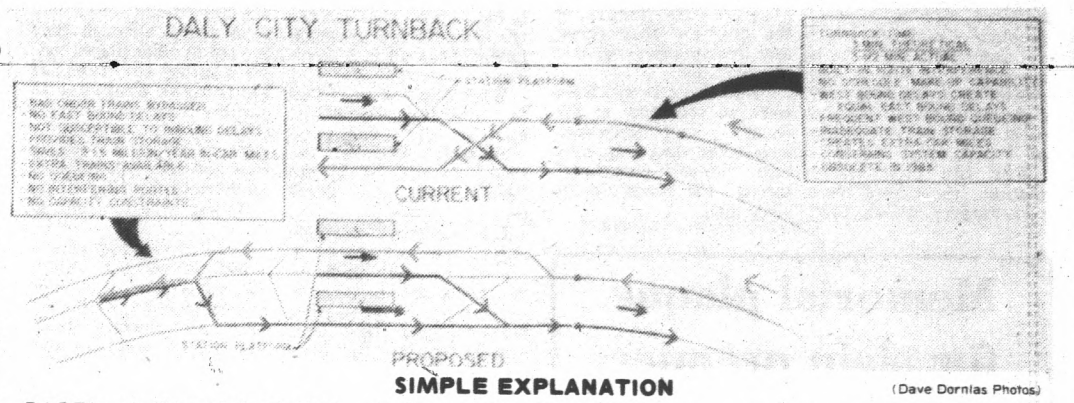
THE POST

Vol. 33, No. 18 DELIVERED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING Wednesday, May 9, 1979

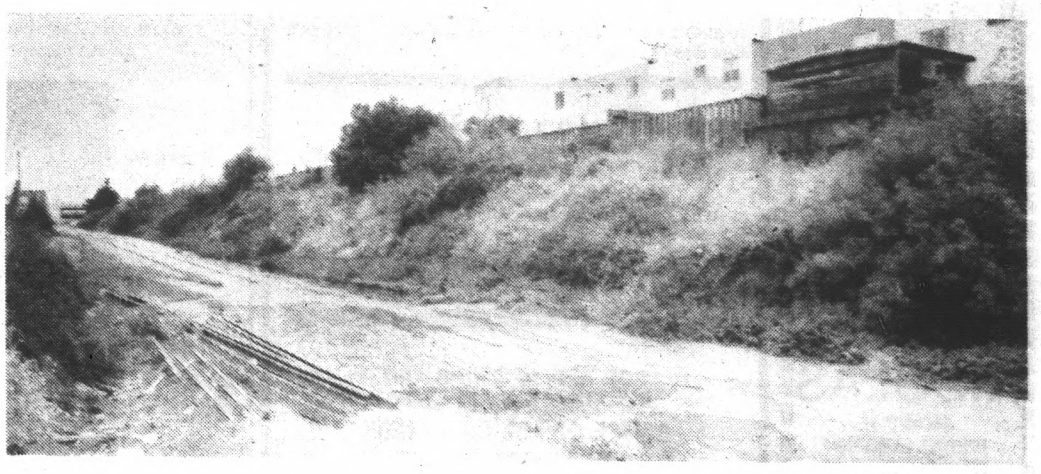


SIMPLE EXPLANATION (Dave Dornias Photos)

BART's staff explained that BART needs a turnaround track in Daly City for two simple reasons: to cut the turnaround times of trains and to save $1.5 million.

END OF THE LINE

This trailer court north of "F" Street in unincorporated Colma is where Daly City has suggested BART should build its train storage facility, rather than just north of Washington Street in Daly City.



RUMBLES IN THE NIGHT

Homeowners along Niantic Street in Daly City, at right, would have to listen to BART trains rumble along the old Southern Pacific right-of-way if BART builds where it wants to.

Then they are able to teach the sightless

Twelve students in Reno Taini's environmental education class at Jefferson High School in Daly City recently learned to ski blindfolded.

By doing so, they were able to teach blind adults to ski this spring at the Nordic Ski Center in Tahoe City, Calif.

Along with students from Athenian School in Danville, the Jefferson students were paired, one to one, with blind persons referred to them through a number of agencies for the visually handicapped.

After the ski lessons, the students talked, played games and prepared meals with the blind persons at a ski lodge.

According to Taini, the youngsters undertook the project to learn what it is like to participate in a sport without sight and how it feels to be dependent on someone who could see.

"This particular project was designed to stimulate self-knowledge and the understanding of others," Taini explained.

He called it a "tremendous experience" that helped students develop the capacity for responsibility, compassion, service and understanding.

The project was funded privately and used equipment and services provided by volunteers.

Jefferson is one of two high schools in Daly City offering environmental education courses under the Community Environmental Education Program.

Students in the other CEEP class at Serramonte High currently are traveling across the country on a 54-day trip, visiting 27 states.

Library services accord reached

After many months of arguing, Daly City reached an agreement with the county Monday night to provide library services for Broadmoor, Garden Village, unincorporated Colma and the Town of Colma.

Under the contract, the county will pay Daly City $19,850 for allowing residents of those areas to use Daly City libraries during the fiscal year ending June 30.

The county is paying Daly City about 15 percent less than the $25,000 it paid prior to the passage of Proposition 13.

The Daly City City Council rejected the county's previous offer to pay the city $15,250 for providing the service — 39 percent less than in the past.

But Councilman William Schumacher wasn't entirely pleased with the agreement.

"Why is the Town of Colma included?" he asked, pointing out that Colma is financially comfortable enough to provide its own library service.

City Librarian Samuel Chandler explained that cities have the option of providing their own library service or paying a tax to the county, as Colma does, and allowing the county to arrange for library service.

Councilman James Tucker said he, too, was having second thoughts about including Colma in the agreement. He asked Chandler why Colma doesn't use South San Francisco's libraries instead of Daly City's.

Chandler explained that Daly City's facilities are closer. He added, "And Daly City's services, if anything, are so much superior to South San Francisco's..."

Tucker cut him off, saying with a smile, "That's all right. I'll stop there."

The council voted unanimously to approve the agreement with the county.

LAST MEETING

Mrs. Robert Brizuela, president of the Westlake Catholic Women, will preside over her last meeting on May 14 in the parish hall immediately following the 8 p.m. devotions to Our Lady of Perpetual Help. She will announce the new executive board for 1979-1980. Mrs. John Hughes will report on the Parish festival. Mrs. Robert Drucker will report on the upcoming installation breakfast to be held at the Olympic Club June 3. Tickets will be on sale at the meeting. Mrs. Ralph Barsi, hospitality chairwoman, and her hostesses will service refreshments following the meeting.

Combatting roof rats

By HEIDI VAN ZANT
Times Staff Writer

Al Merrifield has declared war on a pesty problem — roof rats.

Using public funds, he is supervising an anti-rat program that employs 27 Comprehensive Employment Training Act workers.

For the past three months, the crews have visited parts of Daly City, San Bruno and South San Francisco.

They examine homes free of charge, checking for possible entry points for the roof rats, which generally live outdoors and feed on vegetation.

"Fifteen years ago there were no roof rats in this county," said Merrifield, who noted the rats have been "steadly marching" through the North County since then.

The target area has 9,600 homes in it. More than 200 have been checked already, with Merrifield expecting to have crews visit another 500 homes before program funding runs out in September.

When homes were visited the first time, Merrifield called the response "minimal." However, he said, recently residents have become more receptive.

Inspections are not made unless the homeowner is present, he said. The home is checked for entry points — damaged ventilation screens, pipe openings, crawl spaces and roof lines that do not mesh.

"You have to look for them," Merrifield said. "It's amazing how many there are."

He became interested in the problem when he discovered roof rats in the backyard of his Burlingame home. He has run a similar program in San Mateo.

"We go where the problem is and that might be an affluent neighborhood," he added.

If the workers discover evidence of roof rats or believe the home and yard would be an attractive habitat, they cover all entry points, make minor repairs in fence openings and cut away plants the rats are known to like.

Bait blocks also are put out. They usually are nailed to a fence although they are put in other places too.

Funding for the rat abatement program is coming from a $224,000 CETA grant. Community workers are paid $3.92 an hour and crew chiefs $4.80. Merrifield said he earns $6.50 per hour for running it.

Several residents have called the police to report suspicious activity in their neighborhoods when the crews are checking areas. The CETA workers are identifiable by their dark blue uniforms and white hardhats. They also carry identification cards with their pictures.

The crews have been cleared by three police departments who ran a security check, according to Merrifield.

During their second week visiting the Westlake section of Daly City, Merrifield recalled that two people were arrested when neighbors reported they were driving slowly through the neighborhood. They were subsequently released after a check revealed the nature of their work.

runs along Junipero Serra Boulevard and Mission Street. Both proposals for a turnaround in Daly City would cut through this territory.

Some of the 15 citizens who commented during the remaining hour of the meeting flatly rejected BART's plans to build a turnaround in Daly City.

For example, Elmer E. Moses of Daly City said, "Suppose someone came to destroy your home?"

Rose Urbach of San Bruno urged Daly City to "hold fast."

But most of speakers suggested ways of minimizing the impact of BART on Daly City.

Four speakers were enthusiastic about an idea mentioned by Libby Moreni: to build the tracks right down the middle of Interstate 280.

Others, including Roseann Emerson of the Serramonte Homeowners Association, said they wanted another station in Colma. Bernard said there are no current plans to build such a station.

Only one citizen, Bob Williams of Daly City, favored BART's original proposal to build along the Southern Pacific right-of-way between Niantic Avenue and Junipero Serra Boulevard.

The last speaker, Don Athens of Daly City, questioned what he called BART's "piecemeal planning" and its $30 million solution to a $1.5 million problem.

Athens challenged BART to tell the public more of its plans for the future, rather than insisting that correcting the Daly City problem is its only objective.

Athens said BART lost its credibility by not fulfilling its previous plans, but he said BART can change its negative image by briefing the media more carefully and beginning "creative regional transit planning."

The meeting ended on an upbeat, with Rowe saying that he anticipates BART and Daly City will be holding more meetings that involve the public.

Overcoming 'black thumb attitude' takes experimentation, nursery man advises

By HEIDI VAN ZANT
Times Staff Writer

If you had a fear of growing plants, you would not make it your business. But Michael Rothenberg, co-owner of Shelldance Nursery in Pacifica, did that three years ago.

"I was afraid of plants when I started out. What if they died?" said Rothenberg, 28, who with his brother Bruce has built up a very successful business.

Their business is built around a relatively new family in the plant world — bromeliads — which are commonly known as the pineapple family. Although business is booming, Rothenberg said some people do not know what to make of bromeliads.

"It doesn't look like a normal plant should look," he said. "A lot of people are afraid of anything new."

There are 2,000 known varieties of bromeliads. The Pacifica nursery specializes in mounting various species on cork bark or selling it in sea shells.

"It used to be just a collector's market. We're bringing the plants to the people," Rothenberg said. "There's so much to know about this family. We still haven't found a cure for a lot of things."

Rothenberg has a positive attitude about plants, having long left behind his fear of them. But he still notices many plant buyers fear them.

"They get this black thumb attitude," he said. "They've lost too many. They're afraid of their plants."

What people fail to understand, he said, is that in their homes they cannot usually recreate the ideal conditions of a nursery. So, he advises them to experiment.

"Every single plant is different and every single house is different," said Rothenberg, who refuses to generalize but does say over-watering is probably the most common problem people have with plants.

Before you increase or decrease the amount of watering, he advises people, move the plant around to find a better location for it. He also urges people to shop around more for their plants and to buy ones best suited to their home.

Even though he has taught himself a lot about bromeliads, Rothenberg still has a failure now and then. He recently killed a cherished plant, and is heartsick about the loss.

A friend, Nancy Davis, introduced Rothenberg to the world of bromeliads. He majored in English literature in college and vaguely remembers taking a botany course.

"I got into this as a business," he adds. "Now I'm hooked. I love the plants."

The nursery is tucked away in Pacifica's foothills, just off of Highway 1 near Sharp Park Road. Hundreds of thousands of bromeliads are grown at the nursery, according to Rothenberg's estimates.

Shelldance Nursery, which is a wholesale distributor, has built a national reputation in just a few years, he said. The closest other bromeliad nursery is in San Diego.

"It's like being an emperor on a small island," he said. "People are really excited about it here."

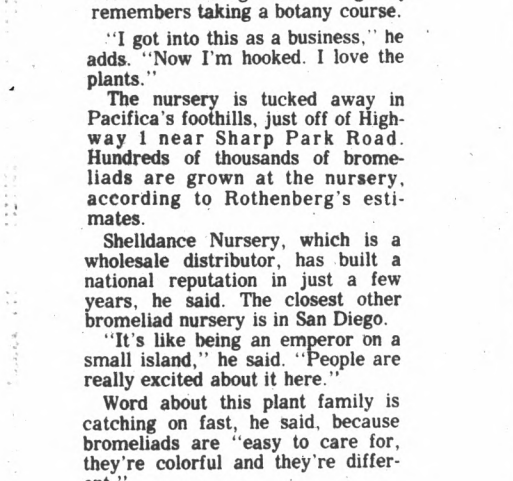
Word about this plant family is catching on fast, he said, because bromeliads are "easy to care for, they're colorful and they're different."

Bromeliad plants from Pacifica are shipped all over the world, with shipments recently going to the Philippines and The Netherlands. The coastal climate is good because it is neither too hot nor too cold, Rothenberg noted.

Each of the nine greenhouses is chock full of bromeliads. They range from small, green spidery-looking plants to large, purple-leaved ones.

As he wanders up and down the aisles point out plants in bloom or an especially beautiful leaf arrangement, Rothenberg reaches here and there propping up one plant and moving another.

That he knew nothing about plants before building up the business with his brother comes as a great shock. But he said it illustrates anyone can be a successful grower — if they are patient and do not fear their plants.



CONGRATULATIONS

Lovanne Heath

This is the day to shop for bargains at the St. Stephen's Women's Guild's annual rummage sale.

The doors will open at 9 a.m. at the Hall of Flowers and the guild ladies will be waiting to assist shoppers with their selections until 4 p.m.

The Fuchsia Ball will be held on Saturday evening at the California Golf Club in South San Francisco.

Mrs. Elsie Toniello is the chairman of this event which is staged annually to raise funds to retire the guild's $300,000 pledge to Mary's Help Hospital.

Nu Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi members will honor their mothers and friends at a Mother's Day Tea to be held in Breuner's community room on Saturday afternoon, according to Mrs. Janet Baccei, publicity chairperson.

The next regular meeting will be May 17 in the home of Mrs. Rose Byrnes. The cultural for that evening will be "The Use of Leisure" and "Full of Life."

Mrs. Larry Gotelli was hostess for the installation of officers earlier this month.

Members of the Alumni Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega will honor mothers with a Mother-Daughter luncheon Saturday at noon in Batemale's Restaurant in San Francisco.

Mrs. Barbara Wolowic is in charge.

The Daly City Foster Parents will hold its Annual Luncheon Monday at 11 a.m. in the War Memorial Community Center, 6655 Mission St.

Mrs. Helen Moses, president, and Mrs. Marie Montosa are in charge of reservations.

On Monday, Mrs. Robert Brizuela, president of the Westlake Catholic Women, will preside over her final meeting as the executive officer of the group.

A special drawing, for which all members who have paid up memberships will be eligible, will be held in the afternoon.

On the agenda for the gathering are the announcement of new officers by Mrs. Brizuela; a report from Mrs. John Hughes on the festival this past weekend; and news about the installation breakfast to be June 6 at the Olympic Club will be presented by Mrs. Robert Drucker.

Jessie Ridin of Millbrae will be the guest speaker when the Daly City Area Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, AARP, meets Monday at 11:30 a.m.

According to Mrs. Servart Ojakian, publicity chairperson, Mrs. Ridin will discuss scholarships available to foster children.

The AARP group meets in the Westlake Community Center, 145 Lake Merced Blvd., the second Monday of each month. Next month the club will celebrate its fifth anniversary with a luncheon for members only at the community center building. Tickets to this special event will be sold at Monday's meeting.

The anniversary luncheon will feature many special events, including musical selections by soloist Gene Almy.

Members of Mary's Help Hospital guild are reminded to save Friday, May 18, for the Mass and installation breakfast hosted by the Daughters of Charity for the guild.

If you weren't among the lucky persons to get tickets to the Tutankhamen exhibit at the De Young Museum you can still enjoy a bit of the current craze for Egyptology by visiting the Sutro Egyptian Collection of San Francisco State College, which is on display at Macy's downtown San Francisco store.

Localites who remember the old Sutro Baths near the Cliff House will have nostalgic memories of this collection which once fascinated thousands of tourists annually. There are approximately 900 objects in the Sutro collection, now the property of San Francisco State's classics department, which represent roughly 4,000 years of Egyptian history.

Should your schedule permit, visit the seventh floor of Macy's and enjoy this remarkable collection!

Jeff kindergarten signups slow

The Jefferson Elementary School District has reminded parents that students who were born on or before Dec. 2, 1974 still may be registered for kindergarten at the district's schools.

Enrollment figures would indicate that only approximately 50 percent of the expected kindergarten students for next year have been registered thus far. Staffing of the schools for next year would be greatly enhanced by the immediate registration of all children who will be of kindergarten age in the fall.

Parents have been asked to register their children for school at their earliest convenience so advanced planning for the district kindergarten program may be more efficient.

Proof of the child's birthdate and a record of the child's immunization for polio, measles, diptheria, whooping cough and tetanus must be brought to school by the parents for verification by school personnel.

Schools registering children for kindergarten are Christopher Columbus, Colma Elementary, Daniel Webster, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Garden Village, George Washington, John F. Kennedy, Margaret Pauline Brown, Marjorie H. Tobias, Thomas Edison, Westlake, and Woodrow Wilson.

THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar, the Diet Workshop

Oh, the diet that bloom in the spring, tra-la, have nothing to do with the face. Or the body. Or the mind.

Or do they?

How do you see yourself, now that you are growing thinner minute by minute?

Does that new skin fit comfortably? Have you:

• Made friends yet with your tinier waist?

• Grown accustomed to your face with cheekbones?

• Become acquainted with the fact that your shoes are now a width narrower?

Once you are at goal range, the old you will be gone physically. Will she be gone mentally, too?

That's the most important question. You see, your image of yourself doesn't shrink automatically as you diet. You must dip it into hot thought and spin it vigorously. Then you have to toss it through a dry mind and take it out smaller.

When you've lived a long time inside a blanket of overweight, your mind hates to give up the security. You persist in seeing yourself as you aren't.

Keep in touch with where you are body size-wise while you are losing. One good way is to have a friendly photographer snap pictures of you at regular intervals. Keep the series where you scan it daily. Once you've refreshed yourself, step to the mirror and compare today's image with the latest snap.

I find it hard at times to realize that I'm dieting when my menus end with something as scrumptious as chocolate cheesecake.

CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

1 pound cottage cheese
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
4 envelopes chocolate Alba '77 powder
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
6 packets artificial sweetener
1 teaspoon chocolate flavoring

Place cottage cheese and vanilla in blender container. Process at low speed until smooth, stopping blender several times and stirring with spatula to mix evenly. Beat eggs until light and fluffy. Add chocolate Alba, cinnamon, sweetener and flavoring, beating until thick.

Gradually add the cheese mixture, beating at low speed until smooth. Pour into eight-inch sprayed cake pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Chill overnight in refrigerator.

Good dieting deceives. It isn't the chore the fad diets are. You have no sense of self-improvement. That's why your new shape may sneak up on you and leave you unprepared for the slim you.

Start today to grow thin mentally as you diet down physically. If you would like a copy of some of our exercises, please send a large stamped, self-addressed envelope to me at The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

All you need for this superb deviled chicken is some melted butter or margarine, one clove of garlic, and a few quick shakes of Worcestershire sauce. And, of course, the chicken.

Remember that the bottle of Worcestershire is a whole flavor shelf in one — a unique blending of eschalots, tamarinds, molasses and other fragrant things. This combination does wonders for chicken, among other things.

In this recipe you don't even have to brown the chicken pieces first. Just mix the sauce ingredients together, pour over the cut-up chicken in a pan and bake until done, basting with the sauce. It's a dish which takes a little time and no fuss.

DEVILED CHICKEN

½ cup butter or margarine
1 garlic clove, crushed
1/3 cup Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
2½-pound chicken, cut in serving pieces

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In a small saucepan melt ½ cup butter. Add one clove garlic; simmer for one minute. Stir in 1/3 cup Worcestershire sauce and ¼ teaspoon salt. Place 2½-pound chicken (cut in serving pieces) in a foil-lined baking pan. Spoon sauce over chicken. Bake until chicken is done, about 45 minutes, basting occasionally. Yield: four portions.

Positions are open in South San Francisco the first, second and fourth Wednesdays of each month between 8:45 and 11:15 a.m. and in San Bruno the second and fourth Thursday, between 12:45 and 3:45 p.m.

FISH — Volunteers with own car are needed to be on call one day a month to transport seniors mainly to medical appointments in the Burlingame-Millbrae area. Dispatchers also are needed to man phone line one day a month from their homes.

More information about these and other opportunities are available by calling the Volunteer Bureau office in Burlingame at 342-0801. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointments through North County number, 992-0957.

MOTHER'S DAY DINING GUIDE

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Brass Elephant for little extra flair

For a little extra flair on Mother's Day, try the BRASS ELEPHANT restaurant in the GROSVENOR AIRPORT INN, South San Francisco. Additional salads will be featured on the already-crowded 25-foot salad table. The buffet table offers selections of blintzes, French Toast, Poached Eggs Florentine, Eggs Benedict, Sauteed Chicken Livers, potatoes hashed in cream, and much more. Adding to the festive dining scene for the special occasion will be strolling minstrels. Reservations are highly recommended ... DEAN LEHR will have beautiful, complimentary orchids for the mothers on Mother's Day at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE garden restaurant in San Francisco, where you and the family can enjoy a festive brunch or dinner in a beautiful garden in full bloom. Dean suggests early reservations for best seating on Mother's Day ... Newcomers to the Bay Area and many long-time residents as well are intrigued when they read the history of the Rockaway Beach area and of the family who started a business there almost a century ago. Now developed into a vast complex of restaurants, a motel, and other enterprises by the GUST family (NICK, LORRAINE and son CHUCK), the history of all this is printed on the outside of the menu of CAPTAIN CHARLES, one of three restaurants which also include NICK'S and THE MOONRAKER.

La Bella Pasta's boardwalk location

Those not familiar with Foster City may be uncertain as to the location of LA BELLA PASTA, the authentic Italian restaurant located in Edgewater Place Shopping Center, on the boardwalk overlooking the lagoon. Best route, says Co-owner SALVATORE FAVA, is via East Hillsdale Blvd., turn right at Edgewater about one-half mile to the shopping center. Park near the Alpha Beta market area, then walk toward the lagoon, where you'll find the restaurant at the boardwalk, with a red awning above the door ... Mother's Day dinner at the new BLUE DIAMOND seafood restaurant in downtown San Mateo (across from the Hilton Tower) is an unbeatable combination of elegance and moderate cost. Chef Leonard's famed gourmet seafood dinners are priced from just $5.25 and on Mother's Day, Host Eddie Shoti will have complimentary flowers for the mothers and a festive glass of champagne to accompany mom's dinner. Open at noon Mother's Day ... Seen dining in the elegant new V.I.P. Room at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Gram Steakery, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, were Gary Bechtel of the Bechtel Engineering firm and Rick Shaklee of Shaklee foods ... "Happy hour" at JOHN & KATHY'S PUB (5 to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays) is made especially happy for patrons by Owner KATHY WIMSATT, who prepares all the oh-so-delicious complimentary hors d'oeuvres; TIL, bar manager/mixologist, and JANIE, bar hostess.

Spotting celebs fun at Rosebud's

Half the fun of dining at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary St. "Theater Row," is recognizing all of the famous entertainers enjoying luncheon or dinner there. Dinner guests at Rosebud's the other night were quick to spot famed Comedian Dick Van Dyke dining with friends from the American Conservatory Theater ... Over at ROMANO's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, everything is done with an extra touch of individuality, which has made Owner ENRICO ROMANO special among restaurateurs ... Tacos, enchiladas, chile relleno, tamales, burritos, rice. beans, chile beans, corn tortillas with butter, refried beans, Mexican rice are all features on the a la carte menu of LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame ... Circle Star Theater-goers find JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant in Redwood City conveniently located for cocktails and dining before and after performances ... Many who shop at the Bayhill Shopping Center, with its full range of markets, stores and specialty shops, may not realize there is also a unique spot in the center called the BAYHILL LOUNGE, which features cocktails, lunch, and live music and dancing to INDEED on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Jerry Updates John's Place

Ever since JERRY LYERLA bought JOHN'S PLACE, the longtime, oldtime "working man's bar" in downtown Burlingame, he's been busy getting everything into good order — still retaining all the old "atmosphere" beloved by the regulars and fascinating to newcomers who "discover" it. Latest update is overhaul of a pool table that provides much entertainment for players and kibitzers alike ... From a modest beginning, JOHN CHIANG has built a big business out of his GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco by concentrating on his credo of "less frills and more taste." He also gives extra attention and service to the take-out, home-delivery and catering ... When you dine at TILLIE'S LIL' FRANKFURT German restaurant in Moss Beach, you're dining like many impressive people used to feast before Owner TILLIE SCHOLTZ decided to open her own restaurant after being in the catering business. Clients like the California Historical Ass'n and San Francisco Opera Ass'n ... CARROLL WALLACE, an outstanding master of ceremonies with a quick wit, directs the flow of entertainment of world famed FINOCCHIO'S, which includes singers, dancers, comedi-ennes, and versatile musicians. Four shows nightly, except Mondays.

Samuel Chandler

I feel sorry for everyone in the Daly City-Colma area who missed the lovely music of the Woodman Classic Ensemble April 29. Such a musicale seldom has been presented in the North County, indeed, in all of San Mateo County.

But, be assured, this program is only the beginning. The arts are alive in this district and in this county. Beauty is stirring. It is time for the people, who haven't done so already, to lend a proverbial helping hand. For too long a period we have treated our part of the world as if it were culturally sterile. For too many years too many residents have been content with the cultural strains that have drifted out of San Francisco.

Fortunately, a few valiant souls, with their heads bloody but unbowed, have kept the arts alive. Some of these noble ones have worked alone or within small groups; some of been connected with the schools; some have worked through municipal parks and recreation departments.

One basic problem that has plagued all of them: How do you stretch a few donated dollars to cover polished productions or exhibits? For all the gray hairs these pioneers have grown as their rewards, we owe them a large debt of gratitude.

Now the time has arrived for the people of this area to climb out of their easy chairs and give the arts their support. The least we can do is attend the concerts produced in our area by such groups as Art-Rise from San Bruno, the Daly City Civic Ballet, the high schools and the various schools of the Jefferson Elementary School District, and the events presented by the recreation department of the cities in the area.

No doubt there are people who will argue that the residents of such bastions of suburbia as Daly City place no value on the arts. Yet a survey entitled "Californians and the Arts" shows differently.

The survey was conducted for the California Arts Commission by the National Research Center of the Arts, Inc., an affiliates of Louis Harris and Associates. The authors write: "The citizens of California hold strongly positive attitudes toward the arts and culture.

It is clear first from the survey that the majorities of Californians see the arts and culture as occupying a central place in the community as an essential service and as an important contributor to the quality of life as well as the economic health of the community."

The surveyors posed two questions: "Arts and cultural activities are as important for a community to have as libraries, schools, parks and recreational activities and, (two) things like museums and theaters and music performances help make California a better place to live in." Almost nine out of ten people (88 per cent) agreed with the first statement while 86 per cent accept the second as being true.

The survey learned that the high cost of tickets is the main reason why 59 per cent of the adults of California do not attend performances or concerts. It also discovered that the majority of the people would approve the extension of aid to the arts by local and state governments, while two of five approve of aid from the federal government. It also showed that the people of California believe business groups and foundations should be asked to contribute to productions in the performing arts and to the museums of California.

In spite of legislation that has caused many art groups and departments to lose their funding, it does not appear that the people have changed their minds. This is a fact governmental boards and the directors of foundations should not forget as they meditate about the expenditure of funds.

B'nai Israel has service

Sabbath services will be observed in the sanctuary of Congregation B'nai Israel, 1575 Annie St., Daly City Friday at 8:30 p.m. The service will be conducted by Rabbi Malcolm Cohen, assisted by Cantor Salo Blumenthal, who will chant the liturgy.

Rabbi Cohen's sermon is titled "The Majesty of Motherhood." The service is in observance of Mother's Day.

Giants sink with Madlock's batting average

Le Pacini

In the final analysis — or maybe it's the next to final analysis — what really is killing the Giants at this point basically is the failure of Bill Madlock.

Sure, the pitching overall has been disappointing, and a case can be made for Marc Hill as the biggest screw-up. But what's lost more games for the Giants than the pitching is their hitting, and Hill isn't expected to hit. Hill is supposed to handle the pitching staff and play defense, and that is what he has been doing. Yes, it would be nice if he could hit 100 points higher. But Hill's hitting has not really lost any games. Eighth place hitters don't lose games by not hitting.

Madlock, on the other hand, is the key third hitter in the lineup, the spot traditionally reserved for the best hitter on the team. Madlock has the highest lifetime batting average of active National League players. Twice he's led the league in hitting. And yet, as I write this, Madlock isn't hitting .250, which would be a poor performance for such a quality hitter; he is hitting less than .150.

Now, if Madlock were a sound defensive player, perhaps his current batting average could be forgiven. But the fact is that he already has lost at least one game directly because of what he didn't do on the field (fail to handle a routine grounder), and who knows how many because of what the poor guy can't do (go to his right and handle pop flies).

Madlock is the same sort of player outfielder Gary Matthews (now with Atlanta) used to be. If he doesn't hit in the .330-.340 range, he's not going to help the team.

Of course, everybody knows that Madlock will not continue to hit below .150; that he's always been a slow starter; that he eventually should end up around the .300 mark. And that bodes well for the team.

But will it bode well enough? I'd feel more comfortable with Madlock hitting .335 than "around" .300. That extra 35 points would leave more, excuse the intended pun, margin for error.

Some Giants ironies: After all the seasons of sparse crowds, the Giants, over the past two seasons of large crowds, always seem to pick the 40,000-50,000 attendance days to not only lose, but to be humiliated.

At about the three-week point of the season, the Giants, though last on the league in team batting, still were leading the NL in runs scored, and were second in all of major league baseball only to the then red-hot hitting and scoring California Angels.

And how ironic that the Giants' two best spring training pitchers, John Montefusco and Greg Minton, now are on the disabled list.

Quick Giants Quiz:

1. Who holds the Giants' western record for most stolen bases in a season and lifetime?

2. What pitcher has had the lowest ERA since the Giants moved west?

3. Who is the last Giants pitcher to lead the league in strikeouts?

4. Who is the last Giants pitcher to win 20 games?

ANSWERS: Sorry I can't put these upside-down, like in the real glossy publications.

1. Surprise. Not Willie Mays, but Bobby Bonds for both, with 48 stolen bases in 1970 and 263 during his career with the Giants.

2. Surprise again. Not Juan Marichal, or Gaylord Perry, but Bob Bolin, who weaved, as they say, a 1.98 ERA in 1968.

3. It was King Carl Hubbell, who did it 42 seasons ago with 159. The only other Giants to ever win strikeout titles were Rube Marquad, who did it in 1911, and, of course, Christy Mathewson, who did it six times, in 1903, 1904, 1905, 1907, 1908, and 1910.

4. Bet you were fooled on this one, too. It was southpaw Ron Bryant, who posted a 24-12 record in 1973.

Random baseball thoughts:

For a team that doesn't do much winning, Minnesota surely manages to gather individual trophies. Between Rod Carew and Tony Oliva, they've managed to win 10 of the last 15 batting crowns in the American League, with Oliva winning in 1965-66 and 1971, and Carew in 1969, from 1972 through 1975, and again for the past two years. And they've earned 17 Gold Gloves. Pitcher Jim Katt (now with Philadelphia) won 11 consecutive Gold Glove awards from 1962 through 1972. First baseman Vic Power won in 1962 and 1963, shortstop Zoilo Versalles won them in 1963 and 1965, catcher Earl Battey won one in 1962, and Oliva grabbed one in 1966.

I've always been a day late and a dollar short. Last year I picked Houston as the dark horse in the NL East. Looks like I miscalculated by one season. Last year I cited their pitching as the reason for my feelings, but it, and Cesar Cedeno, collapsed. This year it and he are healthy.

It's hard to find critics of Babe Ruth, but the few of them who do exist are fond of saying that the Babe hit a lot of his home runs, especially the year he hit his 60, off poor pitchers.

As far as I'm concerned, that's just one more reason for calling him great; the ability to take advantage of weakness. That's what makes entire teams great. The ability to beat the weak sisters consistently. Rising to the occasion only against great competition is great for the box office, but over the years it doesn't pay off in a whole lot of W's.

Local Notes: Sidebar to the recent interview with National League umpire Eddie Montague:

Montague was talking about players he most respected. He named Pittsburgh's Dave Parker as one of them, not only because he has all the tools and uses them all well, but because he's such a great hustler, which, Montague feels, is the element which separates the very good players from the truly great players.

He named the Giants' Terry Whitfield as one of those players he respects. "Not that he's great now," said Montague, "but he has the tools, he hustles, and he has the great attitude to become a future star. He told some friends recently that he never wants it said, when he retires, that he could have done better."

But Pete Rose has a special niche on Montague's "respect" scale.

When Eddie was a youngster, his father, Giants scout Eddie, Sr., managed to get a ball for him autographed by Ty Cobb.

"In all the years I've had that ball," said Eddie, "I never wanted another player's name on it. I felt that Cobb, who had all the attributes as a player I respect, stood alone, and shouldn't share that space with anyone else. But the next time I see Pete Rose, I'm going to ask him to autograph that ball, and then I'm going to put it under glass and retire it forever."

Tag end: Sam De Vito, a San Francisco State quarterback of the late 40s who held every Gator passing mark until Maury Duncan (who was to become a 49er) broke them, has resigned as head coach at Diablo Valley College, where he's been for 20 years, to return to physical education teaching. He will be replaced by defensive coordinator Jim Swan, who played football at SF State in the early 50s.

And Recreation

By MIKE FICHER

And then there were none.

At the beginning of the week, the Carlmont and Terra Nova High baseball teams reigned as the only unbeaten league clubs in the county. Today, although the Scots and the Tigers remain in first place in their respective leagues, neither remains undefeated.

Tuesday Carlmont dropped from the unbeaten ranks as Sequoia dumped the South Peninsula League leaders, 11-4 and Friday South San Francisco handed Terra Nova its first loss of the North Peninsula League season, an 8-0 thrashing at Orange Park.

And the Warriors could not have done it in more convincing fashion.

Every South City starter stroked at least one hit, sending Tiger ace Mel Graham to his first early shower of the campaign, and SSF senior righthander Abe Salazar hurled a one-hit masterpiece to nab the Warriors' fifth win of the NPL season.

In other NPL games Friday, El Camino clinched second place — and kept on breathing down Terra Nova's neck — by defeating visiting Westmoor 5-3, Serramonte took its third straight victory by beating visiting Oceana 5-0 at Marchbank Field and Jefferson kept its playoff hopes alive by stopping visiting Half Moon Bay 6-4.

Terra Nova is now 11-1 and El Camino stands at 10-2. Each club has two makeup contests remaining — including a crucial game against each other at Terra Nova Tuesday. Terra Nova won the teams' first meeting last month, and Tuesday's game — a makeup of the teams' rained-out March 16 contest — promises to be a barnburner.

To say the least, South City Coach Bob Brian was rather pleased with the outcome of the game, considering his club is battling for the fourth playoff spot in the NPL.

"We did everything right today. We didn't make any errors, we had great pitching, great hitting, and as always we had real good baserunning," Brian said.

From the first swing of the bat, it was obvious this was not going to be Terra Nova's day. Leadoff hitter George Bird sent Graham's second delivery of the game soaring over the left field hedge for a towering 400-foot home run.

"After George hit that leadoff homer, yes, that's for sure, we really had the adrenalin flowing," Brian said. "We had plenty going into the game, but once he puts a ball in the streets, hey . . . "

After Bird put one in orbit, Salazar and Steve Bertolozzi added solid RBI hits to stake the 6-1, 183-pound pitcher to a 3-0 lead.

"It felt real good to get three runs early," Salazar said. "You don't relax, but you hang in there, keep going and just bear down."

Salazar bore down for six no-hit innings, only to see the possible gem vanish on a sharp double down the leftfield line by Tiger shortstop Greg Miles to lead off the seventh frame.

"I just hung it," Salazar said of the 0-2 curveball. "I usually set them up with two sliders and then go with an overhand curve but I just hung it. Coach told me that the guy that hit it is the leading hitter in the league. I don't feel bad. He's a good ballplayer and he got a good hit.

"Most of all I thank God we won the game. We need to win the next two games to get in the playoffs. We just need to hang in there."

South City added five more runs in the fourth inning on a bases-loaded, two-RBI single by Ed Serrata and RBI safeties by Jerry Pirillo, Salazar, and Rich Bulloch.

Graham was understandably subdued after the pounding, but said the loss may be a blessing for the Tigers.

"They hit the hell out of the ball. They hit the hell out of the ball last time, too," Graham said. "(The loss) has gotta do something. This will probably help us for El Camino."

Brian's club will get its chance at El Camino in the league finale next Friday — and the contest will probably decide the playoff spots for both clubs.

"Our record hasn't been very good. 4-7 is not very good. A lot of teams would have given up, but we didn't. See, now it's 5-7."

El Camino's Roger Ruzek and Westmoor's Rich Baxley had a couple of identical statistics Friday: five strikeouts and four walks. But another stat was quite different: Camino ripped 13 hits, the Rams four.

With the score knotted at 3-3, the Colts rallied for their decisive runs in the bottom of the fourth. Mark Evans cracked a ground-rule double to left-center, Jeff Pettigrew singled him to third and Al Hoffer smacked a ground-rule double to left-center, plating Evans. After Merlin Nelson drew a walk to load the bases, Brian Humphrey drew a free pass, forcing across Pettigrew.

Serramonte got a four-hit shutout from junior Steve Chester, who struck out three Sharks and didn't allow a walk. The Regents, whose other starting pitcher is fireballing Jeff Dietrich, are piling up some impressive mound stats of late: Serramonte has given up only one run in the last 25 innings, hasn't yielded a walk in its last two outings and has walked only 16 batters in its last nine games.

The Regents, who edged South City 1-0 Tuesday, got an off-field, two-run single to right from designated hitter Jeff Williams with one away in the first inning, and that was all the support Chester needed.

Jefferson's pitchers yielded 12 walks to Half Moon Bay, but the Indians kept getting off the hook by playing sharp defense. Jeff committed only one error while HMB was making four — and the Indians turned over three double plays.

Jeff used the long ball to beat the Cougars. The Indians got a pair of two-run homers to left-center in the fourth, with Dave McDonnell cracking the first (after failing on a sacrifice bunt attempt) with Thaddeus Gill on base, and Dave Terry belting the second with Clay Younger aboard.

Even though the Indians and South City are locked in a tie for fourth place with records of 5-7, Jeff is in trouble because the Warriors won both of the teams' head-to-head meetings.

Dons take MPL track title

Aragon High's track team won the Mid-Peninsula League dual meet championship Thursday with remarkable ease, beating visiting Hillsdale 93-43.

The win gives the Dons a perfect 6-0 mark. Hillsdale finishes 5-1. The MPL Finals will be next week at Hillsdale, with the trials on Tuesday and the finals on Thursday.

In the other meets Thursday, Mills beat Capuchino 87-49, San Mateo downed Burlingame 96-24 and Crestmoor defeated Burlingame 99-26.

Jim Walker led the way for Aragon, winning both hurdles, running on the winning 440 relay team and finishing second in the 100 to teammate Bob Kajikami.

Walker posted personal bests in both hurdles races, a 14.9 in the 120 highs and a 39.5 in the lows (he has run a converted 39.0 in the lows). Walker was second in the 100 with the same time as Kajikami, 10.3. Aragon also won the 440 relay in 44.0. Hillsdale ran 44.5.

Fernando Perez was a double winner for Aragon, taking the mile and two mile, and soph Brian Bauter won both weights, including a 50-4 shot.

Hillsdale's top performances were a second place in the highs in 15.0 by Dave Bortolin and Bill Santiago's 43-1¾ winning triple jump.

Aragon won the meet in the sprints. The Dons swept the first three places in the 100 and 220, and took the first two spots in the 440 and 880, not to mention winning both relays.

Mills had four double winners in its easy win over Capuchino. Ray Barranti (hurdles), Andy Poon (sprints), Jim Hudson (880-mile) and Mike Kenison (pole vault-long jump) all doubled for the Vikings. Jim Thompson ran the 440 for the first time for Crestmoor, in 51.2 Cliff Hathaway was a double weight winner, and Kurt Delfino pole vaulted 13-0 for the Falcs.

San Mateo's Adam Haysbert was a double winner, winning the 220 and long jump, and ran on two winning relay teams.

Cap girls force tie at the MPL top

Capuchino High's girls' track team threw the Mid-Peninsula League race into a three-way tie with a 68-50 win over visiting Mills Thursday on the final day of the MPL dual meet season.

The Mustangs handed Mills its first loss of the MPL season, and left the two teams, along with San Mateo, all with 5-1 marks. The champion will be decided in the MPL Finals, which open with trials Tuesday at Hillsdale. The finals are Thursday at Hillsdale.

In the other meets Thursday, Hillsdale downed Aragon 76-42, San Mateo beat Burlingame 71-41 and Burlingame defeated Crestmoor 61-48.

The twosome of Ryoko Hattori and Anne Hamilton was too much for Mills to overcome. They scored 36 points themselves. Each girl won three races and was second in a fourth. Hamilton, the MPL distance star, won the 880 (2:19.6), 440 (61.2) and the mile (5:35.6). She was second in the 220.

Hattori won both hurdles races, the 110's in 16.2 and the 330's in 50.0, the latter just off her best of 49.6. Hattori also copped the long jump at 16-0¼ and was second in the 100.

Sandy Howard took both sprints for Mills and Chris Radel the weights, including a good 35 10 shot.

But an early disqualificationin the 440 relay and the twosome of Hamilton and Hattori was just too much.

Brenda Brewer, the MPL's top sprinter, won both sprints for Hillsdale, and Becky Corley won the 330 lows in 50.3 to highlight the Knight win. Adrianna Perez doubled in the distances for Aragon.

Toni Hadnott doubled for San Mateo and Denise Jezecki threw the discus 103-9½ for the Bearcats.

Educators test effectiveness of testing

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

"Testing . . . one, two, three." The familiar words most often are heard when someone wants to see if a microphone is working. But they can be used another way: to designate three areas of formal testing — IQ, aptitude and achievement.

Daily, each of us is tested informally. If we don't measure up, we fail this task or that. Often, for adults, failure to pass informal tests opens up new options, new, and perhaps better, ways to approach the reality that is our life. But the formal testing done by schools and colleges from pre-school on often labels a child or young person so definitively that there is little room for change. Children tend to become what the results of a specific test say they are.

A dozen years ago, Dr. Lenore Jacobson, beginning as principal of Ponderosa School in South San Francisco, took a look at the students in her school and the expectations teachers held for them, then proposed a novel thesis. If teachers expected children to perform at a level above where "they really were," would they measure up? Her carefully conducted in-school research led to publication of "Pygmalion in the Classroom" and showed that "below average" students could be stimulated to produce "average" and even "above average" students could be stimulated to produce "average" and even "above average" results if their teachers did not expect them to perform in a "below average" manner.

What Jacobson did was apply the self-fulfilling prophecy theory: Subsequent behavior is determined by pre-conceived belief. The results startled teachers, pleased parents and amazed the educational community which for years had applied the "bell-shaped curve" scheme of thinking to all testing. The bell curve implies that in any group a few are always at the top, a few at the bottom and the great bulk in the middle. Use of the bell curve sorts students into ranked categories which may give them either an exalted or degraded view of themselves.

In the years since Jacobson's research, educators have moved steadily toward teaching methods which insist a child be measured solely in terms of his personal ability and achievement. But even this individualized learning and testing as conducted in the large classroom group situations found in most public schools has come under fire. Society in general and parents in particular still seem to want an objective scale against which to judge their child's performance. "Competency testing," which purports to measure "ability to survive in modern society" now has come into vogue. In fact, recent state legislation (AB65) insists that students meet competency requirements as developed by individual school districts to proceed to higher levels of instruction.

Questions about testing abound. To help parents understand test-related terms, CTB/Mcgraw-Hill, an educational publishing firm, offers a 12-page booklet called "Parent's Guide to Understanding Tests." For a free copy send a stamped, self-addressed legal size envelope with your request to Frank W. Snyder, Editorial Director, CTB/McGraw-Hill, Del Monte Research Park, Monterey 93940. In the pamphlet, test terminology is explained and reasons given for in-school testing. There also is a section designed to help parents understand how best to help children understand and take tests.

Another booklet available locally is "Twenty Questions: A Guide for Parents of Primary Children," developed and published by the Curriculum Study Commission of the Central California Council Teachers of English. I talked recently about the project with Dr. Alice Scofield, commission chairman and a professor of English and education at San Jose State University.

Although only two of the 20 questions and answers deals directly with testing, the others cover almost every aspect of a child's school experiences, from "learning the basics" to "safety." According to Scofield, the questions were developed from those asked frequently by parents attending school advisory committee and PTA meetings. Answers came from over 200 teachers with urban, suburban and rural school experience whose responses were considered carefully then distilled into brief but surprisingly comprehensive form. Each Q/A also has a list of references following it, suggestions for deeper study of the idea.

Scofield explains the pamphlet's purpose as threefold. First, there was a need to put into written form some of the concerns common to most parents and teachers. Second, the current mid-70s focus on reading programs and basic competencies created somewhat an attitude of apprehension with parents and teachers which needed dispelling. Third, the teachers involved in the publication felt not only a commitment to the children they teach but also one to these children's parents. The answers provided are not meant to be definitive, but are designed to open dialogue between parents and teachers, with an ultimate aim of creating an effective learning environment for each child.

Some 5,000 pamphlets were printed in 1978 and distributed statewide last fall through the California State PTA and several county offices of education. Local PTA Council presidents have copies. Many PTA unit presidents have also acquired them. If you are interested, and your school has a PTA, ask about the booklet. If not, single copies are available for $1 each from Scofield, In further discussion with Scofield, I learned that the Curriculum Study Commission of CCCTE is composed of invited members who share an interest in developing curricular projects of service to their colleagues. In addition to planning the annual Asilomar Conference for the teacher organization, the group has produced a literary map, done a pamphlet on professional accountability, is working on two "20 Questions" guides for middle and high school parents (based on research in both public and private urban, suburban and rural schools), and hopes to do a study of what should constitute in-service education for teachers.

Scofield is interested especially in what might prevent teacher "burnout." She conjectures that in-classroom research, guided step-by-step analysis of what works well and what doesn't, might provide a way for tired teachers to gain peer recognition for "important" work and thus regain some of the excitement they felt originally for teaching. Such step-by-step research also might make exhaustive testing unnecessary.

Granted, the question of testing is an emotionally charged one. Parents of students who fall readily into the top or bottom categories tend to discount testing's value. But for the bulk in between, 88 percent of the population assumed to be "average," testing as done in today's school, public and private, is often mystifying, terrifying, and irrelevant.

YOUR BOREL SQUARE LUCKY STORE
NEWLY REMODELED FOR ADDED SHOPPING COMFORT!

JOE SOUZA
MANAGER

"There are lots of things supermarkets can do to reduce food costs"

We have remodeled your Borel Square Lucky Store to make shopping more convenient and pleasant. From wall to wall, floor to the ceiling, you'll find new decor, new fixtures all to enhance your shopping experience!

From talking with customers, we know that maintaining a food budget these days is serious business . . . and we won't insult your intelligence by offering games of chance or gimmicks. The more informed you are about prices and what's happening in the food industry, the more likely you'll be a Lucky shopper.

Over the years Lucky has led the food industry in developing ideas that mean value, quality, service, convenience, consistently low everyday discount prices, and sensible programs like those we've listed below.

Twelve years ago Lucky introduced true discount pricing to the Bay Area . . . and Lucky continues to offer reduced prices without a corresponding sacrifice in quality or selection. What's more, Lucky continues to adhere to that policy. That's why we claim "Lucky Has It!"

LUCKY IS THE LEADER WITH LOW EVERYDAY DISCOUNT PRICING!

KEY BUYS
Key Buys are items for which Lucky can charge a lower price than its regular discount price, as a result of an exceptional purchase or a manufacturer's temporary promotional allowance. Look for the Key Buy tags when you shop Lucky . . . they mean additional discount savings.

QUICK CHECK
To save time when you only want or need a few items, and you're in a hurry, Lucky has the "Quick Check" checkstand available. If your purchases total six items or less, you needn't wait behind other shoppers with filled carts; we'll check you out in a jiffy in the "Quick-Check" checkstand.

SINGLE ITEM PRICING
Lucky won't confuse customers with multiple pricing. In the past, multiple pricing (for example, 4 for 89¢) was a supermarket practice used as a means of stimulating shoppers to purchase a greater quantity of a product. The example of 4 for 89¢ looks like a better bargain than one item at 22¢ . . . but of course it's not. Lucky uses single item pricing so a customer can realize as much of a savings on one can as several cans. In other words, buy only what you need and still enjoy savings at Lucky!

MAGAZINES & BOOKS
Another additonal saving that Lucky shoppers enjoy are discount prices on magazines, greeting cards and paperback books! For example, if a paperback book carries $1.25 as a cover price, Lucky automatically discounts it to $1.13. If a greeting card is pre-priced at 50¢, Lucky discounts it to 45¢. Still another reason why you will enjoy saving at Lucky.

DISCOUNT PRICES
When Lucky initiated their discount price policy over a decade ago, they knew that to lower prices without lowering quality standards was possible ONLY by reducing all controllable costs. Store hours were streamlined, stamps and games were eliminated, weekend "specials" were abandoned, and advertising costs were reduced. These savings, then, were passed on to customers in the form of low everyday discount prices. That policy is still in effect . . . and that's why Lucky is still the leader in everyday discount pricing! Now, more than ever, the phrase, "Lucky Has It" is important to you.

Pep staff tryouts on next school year

By MICHELLE VELEZ, LINDA LEE and LORRAINE WILSON

The NPL swimming trials were at Oceana High School April 24. Because of Jefferson High's small swim team there were only four Indian swimmers to compete in the trials. They were Joe Granbow, Brian Evawme, Steven McBea and Michelle Velez. Brian made the finals that Friday night in the 200-yard freestyle race.

Jeff's badminton team, going for top spot in the NPL, had its second match against Serramonte April 24. The final score was a 9-0 in Jeff's favor. They also had a practice match against University High School last Thursday.

Jeff's 1978-1979 pep staff soon will be handing down their pom-pons to the new pep staff for 1979-1980. Practice started April 16 for girls who were interested in joining next year's spirit staff. Positions open for varsity cheerleader, varsity pom-pon, junior varsity cheerleader, junior varsity pom-pon, and majorette.

April's Student of the Month honor went to Theresa Garon from ths class of 1980. Terri, who has been active in student government since her freshman year, has held offices of freshman vice-president, sophomore class president and, as a junior, now is rally commissioner. She attends school the first half of the day and then works as a typist at the San Bruno Naval Base. She enjoys disco dancing and plans to attend a junior college after she graduates.

The junior class is planning a Great America trip for May 12. Cost is $1.75, and all sign-ups were taken by Mrs. Mars, the junior advisor.

The biggest event of the year, for Jeff juniors and seniors, was May 5. This year's prom was at the Sir Frances Drake Hotel and featured non-stop music.

Jeff had its annual carnival April 26-29. There were spectacular rides such as the zipper, octopus, scrambler, the bumper cars, ferris wheel, and others.

There also were fund raising booths sponsored by clubs and classes. They were: Senior class, jail; junior class, wheel of fortune and kissing booth; sophomore class, sponge-throwing booth; pep staff, popcorn booth; CSF, rat race, and wheel of fortune.

Quality in the entire line

By RICHARD C. MOON

Cadaco of Chicago is one game company that consistently has produced quality games. It is a pretty good-sized company but has not fallen into the trap of some of the "giants" in the industry of putting a little bit of junk into their line and then trying to get game stores to buy because it has a Cadaco label.

Cadaco has some great games and some ordinary games, but you won't find one in the entire line lacking in quality and imagination.

Rumi K is a good example.

This is a game for two, three or four players. It is based on rummy but is played with tiles instead of cards. It is played best by four people, ages pre-teen through adult.

As in all rummy card games, the object is to "go out." In other words, the first player to play all of his tiles is the winner. And, as in a lot of rummy games, the other players lose the total number of points remaining in their hands.

The game equipment consists simply of four sets of tiles: blue, green, red and black. Each color has 26 tiles, two each numbered one through 13. There also are four double-decked tile holders.

The rules of play are easy to follow and are printed on the inside of the box, so you can't lose them. All tiles are placed face down on the table and mixed thoroughly. Each player draws a tile and the one with the lowest number begins.

Each player picks 14 tiles and places them in order by color and number on his rack. The rest of the tiles stay put on the table face down and become the "pot."

As in rummy, players seek to meld to play onto the table. The first meld must total 25 points. There are two kinds of melds — sets of three or four tiles of the same numbers but of different color, and runs or sequences of at least three tiles of the same color in numerical sequence.

There also is a wild tile which can be played in place of any tile and has a value of 25 points regardless of when or how it is used.

Rumi K is a superb game. It is simple in design. There are no dice, spinners or any other equipment except the tiles and the holders. It is typical of many Cadaco games, a basic game packaged and presented in a manner to attract any game player.

Cadaco has been one of my favorite game companies since it produced "The Little Prince," based on the delightful allegorical story by Antoine de Saint-Exupery. The game hasn't been a great commercial success, but Cadaco produced it because it believed in the story, the game, and quality.

Live animals close assembly schedule

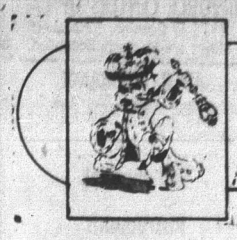
By LENNY HOM
Commisioner of Outside Publicity

Serramonte High School's Executive Board Thursday will sponsor the last assembly for the school year. Animal trainers from Marine World-Africa USA will bring live exotic animals to perform. This assembly should prove to be the best one this year. Be sure to see it.

Are you interested in helping your class? Would you like to show your class spirit? Would you like to help promote your class' spirit? If you have answered yes to any of these questions, then run for class office. Election petitions for next year's sophomores, junior, and senior class officers may be picked up in the attendance office. The petitions must be returned to the attendance office by noon, May 11. The elections will be May 22.

Sophomore class T-shirts are on sale this week. Any sophomore who would like to buy one should go to the cashier's office during lunch and look through the class of '81 catalogue. Prices vary depending on what you order.

Skyway Aviation will be in the Career Center May 16 with a slide show on airline occupations. If you would like to attend the presentation, sign up in the Career Center today.



The Regent

Designs for the senior plaque were submitted Monday. The student who draws the best design will receive a cash award of $10. The senior plaque will be put in the south mall, and will hold reminders and other memorabilia of the class of '79. It will be reopened at their class reunion.

Serramonte High School's Junior-Senior Prom is just about a week away. This year the prom will be May 18 at the Dunfey Hotel. Prom bids are on sale now in the cashier's office. The price is $14 per couple.

Student body cards for the 1979-1880 school year are on sale now in the cashier's office. The price is $4. Next year the cost will be $5.

Seniors: Applications for Skyline College for next year are in the counseling office. Pick them up outside of Mrs. Haun's office today.

Tryouts for next year's spirit staff will be May 17 at 2:30 p.m. in the band room. Good luck to everyone who is trying out.

Serramonte's spring play, "Once Upon A Mattress," will be performed Friday and Saturday night. For tickets, see any cast member or Mr. Crittenden in room 228A.

Serramonte High Schmol has started a new policy. If the student body keeps the halls clean and litter free, and also stop vandalism, they will be dismissed earlier Friday. Mr. DuBois, principal, reminds students that if the halls are not kept clean and vandalism not stopped, the early dismissal policy will not be continued.

Special thanks to the staff at the Post for writing the headline for last week's column. It really tickled me pink.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the student body for giving me the chance to be student body president for the 1979-1980 school year. Next year, I will do everything possible to benefit you, the students of Serramonte. Despite the numerous problems that are rumored for next year, (budget cuts and possible school closures), I hope to make the 1979-1980 school year a great and productive year for all of us at Serramonte.

Cancer in older animals

By D.R. BARNETT, DVM

QUESTION: The Humane Society says that a spayed female cat or dog will live longer because she is less subject to cancer. What is the incident of cancer in dogs and cats? In all the pets we've owned, mostly dogs and cats, we never had one that had cancer.

K.R.

ANSWER: Mammary tumors are very common

in older females that have not been spayed. Tumors of the testicles are some of the more common types of tumors in male dogs. Of course, if the testicles have been removed through neutering the possibility of cancer in the area is eliminated. I can't give you a definite percentage of cancer in dogs and cats, but it is fairly high. The mammary and testicular tumors I mentioned are probably the most common and they can be prevented by sterilization. The Humane Society is correct.

Q: We have a white furry dog, medium size, with a very black nose. Two weeks ago the black color faded out and has remained that way. Do you think that his nose ever will be black again? Why does this happen?

M.S.

A: You did not give me the age of the dog or whether he has been ill recently, so I have very little on which to base my answer. The pigment will fade in older animals or occasionally in a severe illness. I also have seen cases where the pigment faded out for no apparent reason and I was unable to explain it. Your veterinarian might be helpful in this case.

Q: What causes a dog always to be hungry? Our dog is given plenty to eat, but for some reason is always starved. He is terribly high-strung and is about seven years old. He eats everything in sight and never gets fat. Is there anything we can do to slow him down?

R.L.

A: Hyperactive, excitable dogs often have a high metabolic rate and are unable to put on weight even though they eat a tremendous amount. The same condition often is seen in humans. There is really nothing that can be used to slow these animals down over the long term. Tranquilizers work well for the short term usage. Neutering often has a quieting effect and also has other benefits such as animal population control, lower incidence of bite wounds and auto accidents (since the dog doesn't seem to wander as much), and a lower incidence of cancer.

Former teacher helping teachers who soon may be former

By LIN DAY

Gailanne Barth, a young, blonde ex-schoolteacher with six credentials, is sparking a unique and effective short course that is being looked at up and down the Peninsula as one answer to the distress of school districts forced to lay off teachers as a result of Proposition 13.

Ms. Barth has found the course so much in demand, she says, that she has been expanding its personnel to handle the orders.

Her course, designed to re-orient teachers towards high-paying industrial positions, is either being given or scheduled all around the Bay Area.

School boards, faced with scores of teachers (20,000 in the state are affected) whose careers have been cut short by the cutbacks, are finding the course one way to ease the pressure and frustration that results, she says.

In her course, which lasts five nights over as many weeks, (in one case, a district asked for two intensive Saturday seminars) teachers gather with the speaker, usually a top industry personnel interviewer, to exchange thoughts about job interviews,something colleges usually fail to teach.

They learn what the man across the desk wants to hear, and what he doesn't want to hear. They learn how to conduct themselves, when to talk and when not to, and they get a picture of what it looks like from the other side of the desk.

Conceivably, when they enter the job market, the teachers may again face the same man they had been talking to. The men participating in the program represent such major industrial firms as Hewlett-Packard, Stanford Research Institute, American Telephone and Telegraph and Syntex. Or they may be from the United States Department of the Interior, which also is lending a helping hand.

In addition to the classes, which last two or more hours each, and include personnel representatives discussing the opportunities in their areas, the program actually offers a full sample interview, with critique.

An unusual feature of one class meeting is "role playing," in which the teacher switches with the personnel man and interviews him for the job.

Another class focuses on the preparation of resumes, considered all-important in obtaining jobs, so that the teacher candidate for an industrial position is able to put his or her best foot forward in a way the personnel man can appreciate.

One session spends time on teaching how to fill out an industrial application form — they usually are more complicated than expected.

The classes teach how to dress for an interview, how to talk, and how to present one's skills to the interviewer.

"We teach our people how to market themselves and how to create a successful image," Ms. Barth says.

Its such a new field and endeavor, she adds, that "there are no textbooks on what we do."

This is helpful in one way, she says, because "the corporate representatives are on to what is in the books and spot such strategey immediately."

There will be a book — she is writing it.

Along the way, the teaching group in the course does a full evaluation of the prospective job candidates, and discusses it with them.

"We identify the skills they have that will be transferrable to industry or other specific job goals."

Ms. Barth initiated the course last summer with a nonprofit organization in Santa Clara County. Since then, she has expanded to Alameda County, San Francisco and now San Mateo County, where she is presenting the project to school boards.

Some of the groups with which she has worked are the Santa Clara County Office of Education, the California Teachers Association and American Federation of Teachers.

In San Mateo County, the program has been discussed with management people at College of Notre Dame and in South San Francisco.

In San Francisco, an unsponsored program is underway. The Fremont Adult School is sponsoring the program. Discussions are under way all over the Bay Area at every level, she notes.

Industry participation has been very positive, she said.

Gailanne Barth

"I find they are eager to secure the packaged product.

"They don't wish to pay employment agencies to locate teachers,"she claims, "and they look with disinterest upon the unpackaged type of product they see in the teachers coming in looking for jobs."

Ms. Barth has often acted as the intermediary in the situation. "We invite corporate representatives to look at some of the possibilities in employment," she says, and "they respond quickly and positively."

It takes away the "threat situation," she says. The employer is not put in the position of having to turn somebody down. Instead, he can show what is there, and sometimes an amicable solution develops on the spot.

Among other things, Ms. Barth, who developed many friendships in preparing her project, through discussions with the Department of the Interior and the Small Business Administration, offers professional career counseling through personnel who participate in the project. Many instructors are also qualified career consultants who specialize in dealing with teachers.

She continued her education at Rutgers University where she was awarded her master's degree in Education, with emphasis on psychology and research.

While obtaining her masters, she was a full-time teacher and reading specialist at Hanover Park Regional High School in East Hanover, N.J. During five years of teaching, she taught gifted college preparatory students as well as students with learning disabilities, and adult classes in functional reading improvement.

"One day," she says, "I looked around and decided that there is a need for teachers to market themselves."

She said this happened when she came to California just in time to run into the Jarvis-Gann syndrome.

"I had 13 professional employment recruiting agencies actively looking for a job for me," she recalls, "and they were coming up with fictitious job titles and clerical positions, some of which were token or dead end.

"If they couldn't market me," she says, "then perhaps they can't market anyone. They wound up often asking me to work for them."

It was ironical, she says, but it made her think. Especially, she recalls, when some actually started bargaining to get her to come to work for them.

The project she devised for herself is much more work than she expected, keeping her going from 5:30 a.m. to midnight more often than she wishes, but it is satisfying, rewarding and fulfilling, she says.

"The best reward is seeing the repackaged teacher successful and happy," she says, "with a new career."

Many of the teachers who join the classes are still employed in relatively safe jobs in their districts, she says.

However, they feel the door has been closed on their future, and are looking elsewhere at career alternatives, she adds.

Sometimes, after experiencing the full gamut of job-seeking and opportunity, they have second thoughts and return to the system with a full reassessment of their teaching career and its potentials, making a decision to be more positive in a teaching role.

"That is more than satisfying to me," Ms. Barth says. "I feel that we have helped, either way."

Coed summer school at Notre Dame High offers four programs

Four programs are scheduled for Notre Dame High School's co-ed summer school this year, according to Kathleen Tiernan, summer principal at the Belmont school.

One semester of high school credit may be earned in civics, English, clothing, basic design, beginning oil painting, typing, photography, geometry, chemistry and U.S. history. Tuition for each class, held from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., is $100.

Refresher courses in Algebra I and Spanish I, with no high school credit available, will be offered from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. for a $100 tuition fee.

High school preparation classes will also be offered, with tuition fees of $55 for one class and $100 for two classes.

Two sessions of driver's education, from June 25 to July 6 and from July 9 to July 20, are planned for a fee of $30.

Futher information is available from Miss Tiernan at the school. Registration and tuition deadline is May 25. After that time, registration will be accepted on a space-available basis.
